1871.

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1871, by ANDREW BOYD, in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.

View of Newport.

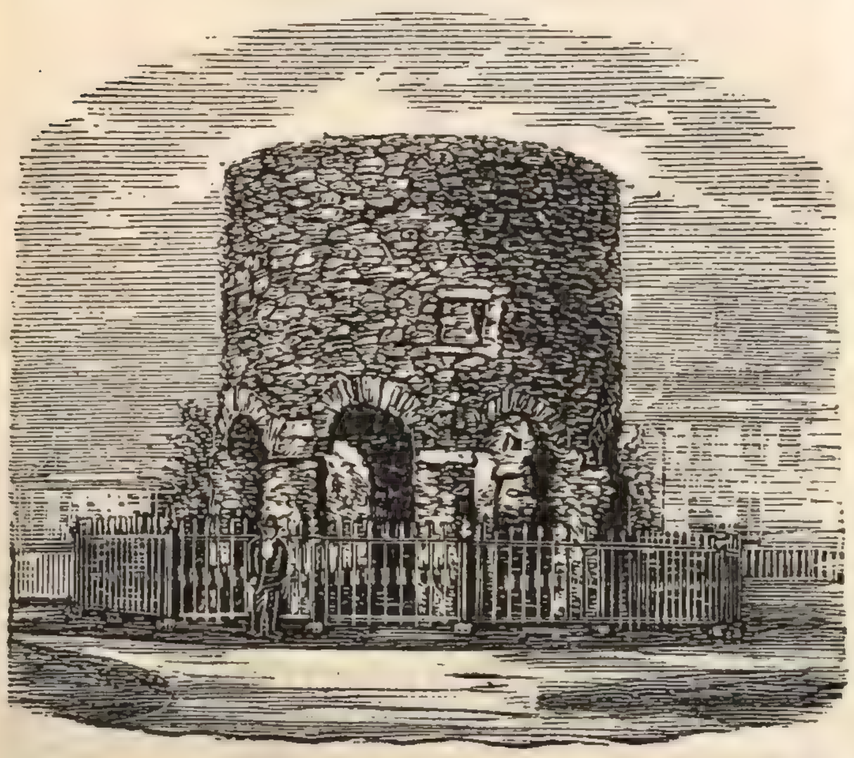

Newport, with its topographical beauties and fine ocean shores, its charming villas and sumptuous mansions, and its many interesting historical associations, make it to-day the most fashionable and elegant of all our watering places.

The chief picturesque attractions of the place are three fine beaches. The first beach is chiefly used as a bathing ground by visitors. At the second beach are the famous rocks called Purgatory and the Hanging Rocks, within whose shadows the celebrated Bishop Berkeley wrote his "Minute Philosopher." Nearer to the city, and upon the coast, is the great Spouting Cave. The Glen; Lawton's valley; Lilly Pond; Bellevue and Ocean avenues, and other localities are charming places to ride to.

Among the venerable buildings still to be seen, is the ancient State House, erected in 1742. From its steps in July, 1776, Major John Handy read the Declaration of Independance, fifty years afterwards he was called upon to read itfrom the same spot on the anniversary of our independance. His children reside in Newport; the Redwood Library, erected in 1748 (among its collections are eighty-four large volumes presented by William the Fourth, King of England); Tammany Hall Institute;

Watch No. 1154, Stem-winder, U. S. Watch Co.; Variation, 31 sec-

Trinity Church ; dating back to 1726 ; the Vernon Family Mansion, 13 Clarke street; the "Penrose House," on Church street, where Washington dined and danced ; the Channing house erected in 1720; Com. Perry's House, 9 Washington square ; the City Hall, erected in 1763 ; the fortifications in the harbor, and the "Old Stone Mill," a relic of a period past remembrance, and which has caused much speculation as to its origin; Lime rock the home of the Newport heroine, Ida Lewis ; Fort Dumpling ; Goat Island ; Rose Island ; Spouting Rock and the Lover's Leap, are but a few of the interesting localities in this beautiful city.

"Old Stone Mill."

Newport was the birthplace of the gifted miniature painter Malbone ; and Gilbert Stuart's place of nativity may be seen in Narragansett, across the bay. Stuart made two copies of his great Washington picture for Rhode Island—one can be seen in the State House at Newport, the other in that at Providence. His daughter, Miss Jane Stuart, an artist of much skill, resides in Newport.

The Newport Mercury, a paper established in 1758, by James Franklin, brother of Benjamin Franklin, and upon which the latter learned his trade, is still published by F. A. Pratt.

The Old Chair of State, in which Gov. Benedict Arnold sat at the reception of the charter in 1663, when it was proclaimed in the presence of all the freemen of the colony, at Newport, is in the possession of the Gould family.

In 1768, the ship "Endeavor," commanded by Capt. James Cook, sailed from England for the south seas, having on board Sir Joseph Banks, etc., for the purpose of observing the transit of Venus over the Sun's disk, which took place on the 4th of June, 1769.

The "Endeavor," subsequently became engaged in the whaling business. In consequence of the war between England and this country, she put into Newport, was condemned, sold and broken up. William Gilpin, Esq., on Thames street, has in his office the crown taken from her stern. Joshua Sayer, Esq., has a piece of wood about five feet in length taken from her.

CAPITAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

View of the Capitol.

District of Columbia, created by Congress, July 16th, 1790.
Corner Stone of the District laid April 15th, 1791.
Corner Stone of the Capitol laid by GEORGE WASHINGTON, Sept. 18th, 1793.
U. S. Government removed from Philadelphia to Washington, June, 1800.
Congress first convened in the new Capitol, 3d Monday of Nov., 1800.

In 1789 George Washington was elected the first President under the Constitution. In consequence of delays incident to the first organization of the government, he was not inaugurated on the 4th of March; that event did not take place until the 30th of April.

The District of Columbia has just been erected into a Territory, but was originally set apart, pro bono publico, as the seat of the Federal Government. It was ceded to the United States for this purpose by Maryland. It occupies an area of sixty square miles. Originally its measure was one hundred square miles, the additional forty coming from Virginia. It included the city of Alexander, a few miles below the metropolis on the Potomac. This part of the cession was, however, retroceded in the year 1846. The present cities of the District are Washington and Georgetown. Maryland lies upon all sides except the southwest, where it is separated from Virginia by the Potomac river.

seconds per month for three months.—E. C. Keys, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Until this year the District was governed directly by the Congress of the United States, and its inhabitants had no representation, and no voice in the Federal elections.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Washington City, the political Capital of the United States, is in the District of Columbia, on the banks of the Potomac river. It is 40 miles from Baltimore, 136 from Philadelphia, and 226 from New York, with which cities, as well as with all the chief towns of the Union, it is connected by railway. When the original plan of Washington shall be realized in its full growth to the proportions it was designed to reach, it will be in its own right, and without the aid of its official position, one of the great cities of the Union. It would be difficult to invent a more magnificent scheme than that of the founder of Washington, or to find a location more eligible for its successful execution. Its easy access from the sea, gives it every facility for commercial greatness, and its varied topography almost compels picturesque effect and beauty.

The site was chosen by Washington himself.

The scene from the lofty position of the dome of the Capitol, or from the high terrace upon which this magnificent edifice stands, is one of unrivaled beauty, and it gives the visitor at once and thoroughly, a clear idea of the natural advantages of the region, and of the character extent, and possibilities of the city. Looking eastward, for the space of a mile or more, over a plain yet scarcely occupied, the eye falls upon the broad and beautiful waters of the Potomac, leading by Alexander and the groves of Mount Vernon to the sea. Turning westward, it overlooks the city as it at present exists, upon the great highway of Pennsylvania avenue to the edifices of the State and Treasury Departments and the President's house, the avenue dropping towards the center, as a hammock might swing between the two elevated points. Around, on other rising grounds the various public edifices are seen with fine effect; and, turning again to the left, the view takes in the broad acres of the new National Park, in which are the many unique towers of the Smithsonian Institute, and the soaring shaft of the Washington Monument; off, in the distance, across Rocky Creek, are the ancient looking walls and roofs of Georgetown.

THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol, in its magnitude and in its magnificence of marble and domes, and upon its bold terrace height, will have attracted the visitor's curious wonder miles distant, whichever way he may have approached. The corner stone of this imposing structure was laid by Washington himself, with great masonic array, Sept. 18th, 1793. In 1814 it was burned by the British, together with the Library of Congress, the President's house and other public works. It is built of freestone and painted white. In 1818 it was entirely repaired, and in 1851 (July 4), President Fillmore laid the corner stone of the new wings, on which occasion the Hon. Daniel Webster delivered a brilliant oration. The whole length is 751 feet, and the area covered is four and one-third acres. The surrounding grounds, which are beautifully cultivated and embellished by fountains and statuary, embrace 30 acres. The Senate Chamber and the Hall of Representatives of the Congress of the United States are in the wings of the Capitol, one on either side of the central building.

The next grand feature of the Capitol is the Rotunda, its diameter is 96 feet, and height 220, on the first floor, it is divided into eight panels, in each are paintings representing respectively, Embarkation of the Pilgrims for America, by Weir; Landing of Columbus, by Vanderlyn; The Baptism of Pocahontas, by Chapman; Discovery of the Mississippi by De Soto, by Powell; Declaration of Independence; Surrender of Genl. Burgoyne; Surrender of Cornwallis and the British Army, at Yorktown, by Col. John Trumbull. Between the panels, in bas relievos, are four historical subjects representing The Preservation of Capt. John Smith, by Pocahontas; Landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock; Penn's Treaty with the Indians; Conflict between Daniel Boone and the Indians. There are also specimens of sculpture of the heads of Columbus; La Salle; Sir Walter Raleigh and Cabot, by Causici and Capellano. On the outside of the east door, are also statues of Columbus; The Indian Woman; and two of Colossal size representing Peace and War, by Persico. There is also a group called Civilization. In the Park is Greenough's colossal marble statue of Washington, his right hand pointing towards heaven, and in the left holding a Roman Sword.

The new dome resembles the modern rather than the antique structures of this character; it is 220 feet from floor to ceiling, and from the Western grounds is about 400 feet high. A spiral staircase winds around between the interior and exterior, from the floor to the summit, and at various heights are colonnades, from which the visitor has magnificent views.

The dome is decorated with pilasters, rich cornices and entablatures, springing up toward the sky; and crowning the pinnacle of this beautiful and grand piece of art is the bronze statue of FREEDOM, 20 feet high, commenced by Crawford, and since his death completed by Clark Mills.

The new Senate Chamber is in the north wing of the Capitol, and is 113 feet 3 inches long, 80 feet 7 inches wide, and 36 feet high. The ceiling is of cast iron, with large sky-lights, having in the center of each, in color, the arms of a State or Territory. The walls and ceilings are richly colored. There are panels and niches yet to be filled with paintings and statuary. The galleries seat about 1,200 persons. The Hall of Representatives is in the south wing, and is 139 feet long, 93 wide, and 36 high. It is built on about the same general plan as the Senate Chamber. The decorations are rich, but darker color than the Senate. It is also to be adorned with paintings and statuary. Galleries seat 1,200 persons.

THE CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY

Is in the west front of the Capitol Building. The original library was collected in 1800, but was destroyed in 1814, during the war with England. It was afterwards replenished by the purchase of a splendid library belonging to Thomas Jefferson, by Congress, for $23,000. In 1851 it contained 50,000 volumes, and by an accidental fire in that year, about 30,000 volumes were destroyed. The new rooms are fitted up with ornamental iron cases and iron ceilings, the whole being perfectly fire-proof. Congress has made large appropriations, and many of the lost volumes have been replaced. Present number of volumes 190,000. The public are privileged the use of the books of the library, while members of Congress only can take away books. The librarians are gentlemanly and obliging, and visitors can while away many a pleasant hour in these rooms.

THE SUPREME COURT ROOM

Is also in the Capitol Building.

THE EXECUTIVE MANSION.

The President's Mansion, or White House, as it is familiarly called, is on Pennsylvania Avenue, between 15th and 17th streets, and fronting Lafayette Square. It was erected in 1792, rebuilt after the war of 1812. It is built of free stone and painted white. The lawns around, containing some twenty acres, drop gradually toward the Potomac river. This elegant but not imposing edifice is two stories high, 170 feet long and 86 feet deep. On the north point, upon Pennsylvania Avenue, the building has a portico, with four Ionic columns, under which carriages pass. A circular colonnade of six Doric pillars adorn the Potomac front. In the center of the lawn, across the avenue, on the north, is Clark Mills' bronze equestrian statue of General Jackson, erected in January, 1853. The artist has the honor of being the first to succeed in erecting a statue representing a steed poised upon its hind feet, with no other support. It is cast of cannon taken by Jackson, and cost $50,000. Near the President's mansion on the one side, are the very plain buildings of the Navy and the War Departments, and on the other side is that of the Treasury Department.

STATE DEPARTMENT.

The State Department is temporarily located in the building belonging to the Washington Orphan Asylum on 14th street.

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Is on 15th street, between Pennsylvania Avenue and President's Square. It is 457 feet in length, and built of granite. The front has a colonnade 300 feet long, and 42 Ionic columns, and it is really an imposing structure.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT

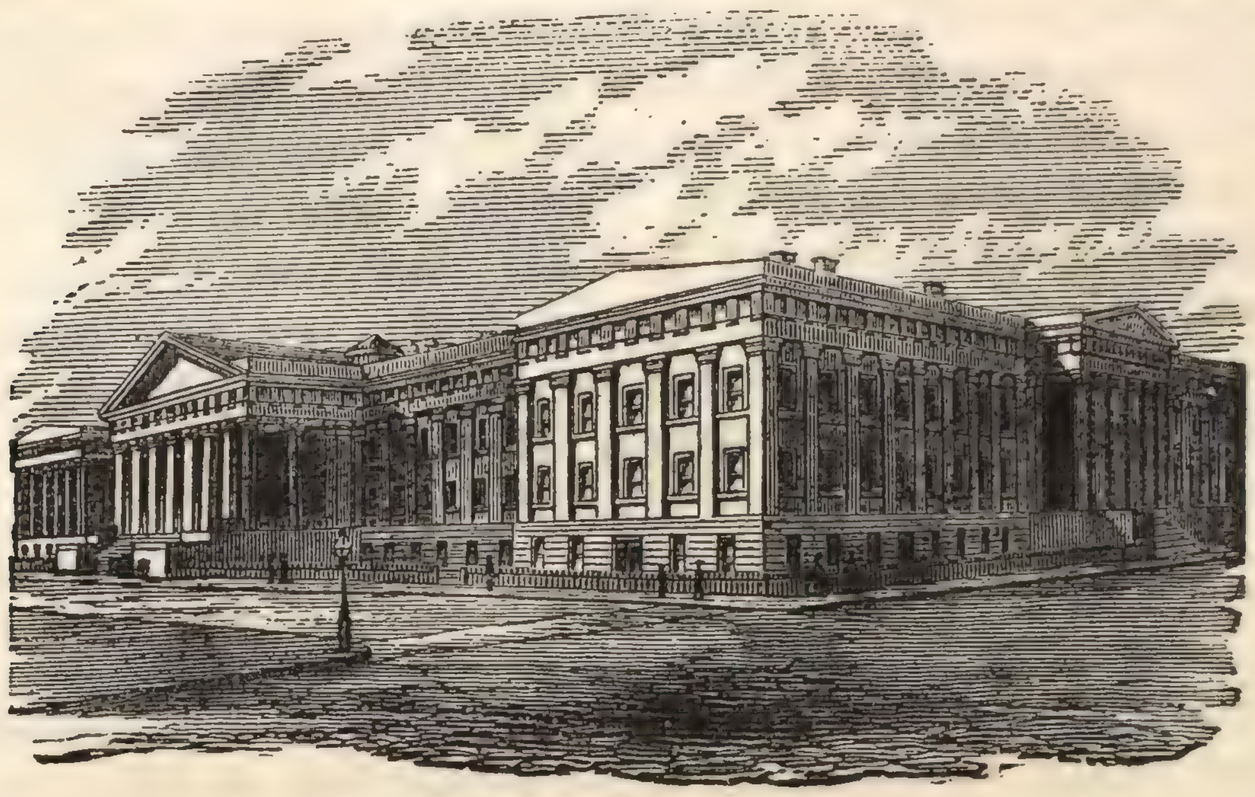

Is directly west of the President's house, on 17th street, near Pennsylvania Avenue. Has many national flags, and other trophies; portraits of naval heroes, medals, &c.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT

Is also on 17th street, near that of the Navy. It contains medals, trophies of war, &c.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE

Is within the area of the New Park, west of the Capitol and south of Pennsylvania Avenue. This noble institution was endowed by James Smthson, Esq., of England, "for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The edifice is constructed of red sandstone, in the Norman or Romanesque style. Its length is 450 feet; its breadth, 140, and it has nine towers from 75 to 150 feet high. It contains a lecture-room, capacious enough to hold 2,000 auditors; a museum of natural history, 200 feet in length; a superb laboratory; a library room, large enough for 100,000 volumes; a gallery for pictures and statuary, 120 feet in length.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

This is an elegant building recently erected on the grounds adjoining the Smithsonian Institute.

THE CITY HALL,

The home and resort of City Fathers, is on D street, at the head of 4½ street. It is a large and handsome edifice, 200 feet in length. In front of this is the Lincoln monument, erected in 1867.

THE NATIONAL OBSERVATORY

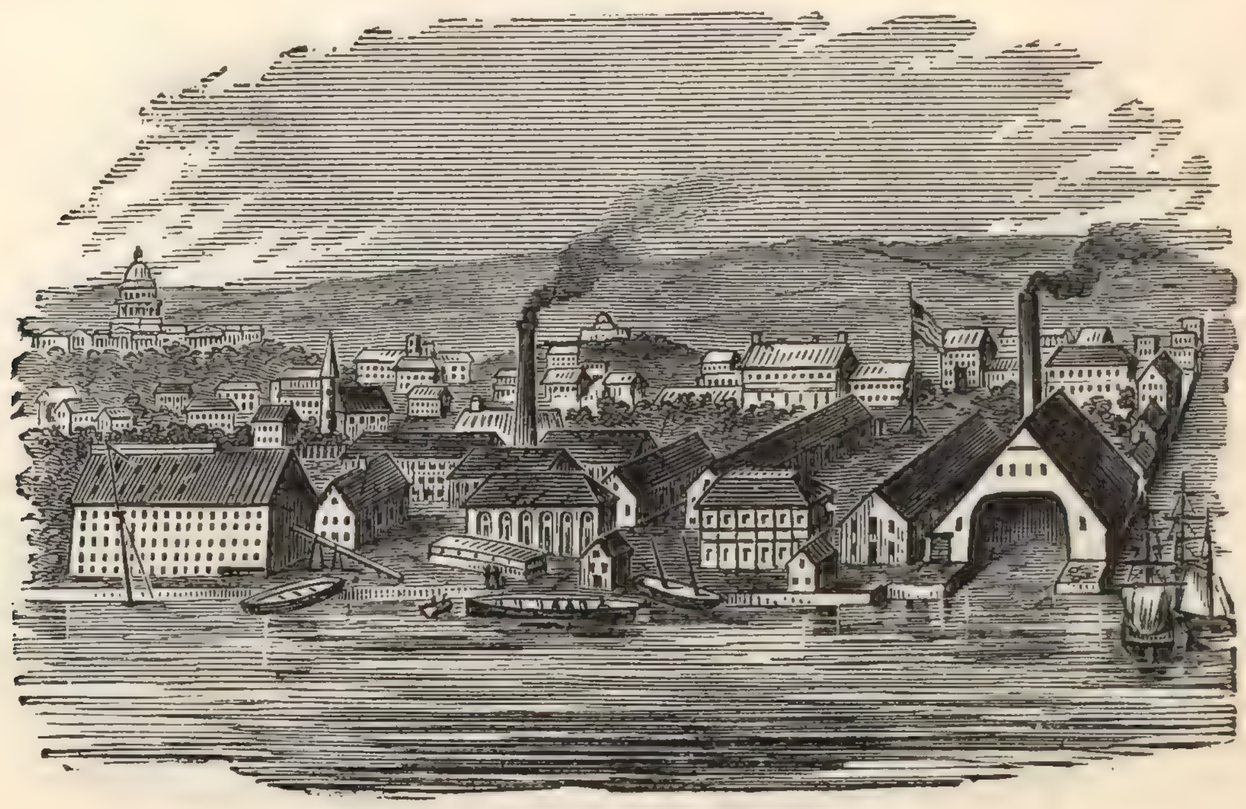

Is on the banks of the Potomac towards Georgetown. The site is a beautiful one, having a commanding view of the surrounding country. It occupies a high rank among the observatories of the world, there being but one—that Russia—superior to it.

THE NAVY YARD,

On the Eastern Branch, about three-fourths of a mile southeast of the Capitol, has an area of 27 acres, enclosed by a substantial brick wall. Within this enclosure, besides houses for the officers, are shops and warehouses, two large ship houses and an armory, which, like the rest of the establishment, is kept in the finest order.

THE NAVY MAGAZINE

Is a large brick structure, situated in the southeastern section of a plot of 70 acres, the property of the United States, on the Eastern Branch.

NATIONAL MONUMENT TO WASHINGTON

Is on the mall. The base is to be a circular temple, 250 feet in diameter, and 100 feet high, upon which there is to be a shaft of 70 feet base and 500 feet high; the total elevation of the monument being 600 feet. The temple is to contain statues of Revolutionary heroes and relics of Washington. It is to be surrounded by a colonade of thirty Doric pillars, with suitable entablature and balustrade. Each State contributes a block of native stone or other material, which is to be placed in the interior walls. The work on the monument stopped ten years ago, and there is nothing to be seen as yet but a plain shaft about 150 feet high.

THE CONGRESSIONAL OR NATIONAL CEMETERY

Is about a mile east of the Capitol, near the Anacosta, or eastern branch. Its situation is high, and commands fine pictures of the surrounding country.

UNITED STATES CONSERVATORY

Is on the Reservation, near the canal and Pennsylvania avenue, and between 1st and 3d streets. It contains a collection of the finest exotic plants in the country. Belongs to the government.

THE WASHINGTON ARSENAL

Is on the extreme end of Greenleafs Point (or the Island), commands an extensive view. The Potomac and Eastern Branch run by the arsenal shore. It is one of the principal Arsenals of construction in the United States, and contains much useful and ingenious machinery.

GEORGETOWN.

Georgetown is so near as to be almost part and parcel of the Capitol. It is at the head of navigation on the Potomac, on high and broken ground. Many elegant mansions, the residences of some of the foreign ministers among them, occupy the "Heights" of the city. Oak Hill Cemetery is a spot of much beauty. An important Catholic College, with both male and female schools, is located here.

MOUNT VERNON,

Sacred as the home and tomb of Washington, is upon the west bank of the Potomac, fifteen miles below the Capitol, and eight miles from Alexandria.

The tomb consists of a plain, but solid structure of brick, with an iron gate at its entrance, through the bars of which may be seen two sarcophagi of white marble, side by side, in which slumber in peaceful silence the "Father of his Country," and his amiable consort.

This sacred domain remained, since the death of Washington, in the possession of his descendents, until very lately, when it was purchased for the nation for the sum of $200,000, raised by subscription, under the auspices of a society of patriotic ladies, who bravely organized themselves as the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association of the Union. Many thousand dollars of the fund came from the lectures and literary labors of the Hon. Edward Everett.

In educational advantages, Newport is fully up to the times, having, in addition to an excellent system of public schools, several first-class private institutions.

The oldest and best known of these is the Boarding and Day School for Boys, established in 1854, by Mr. Henry H. Fay, and still flourishing under his management. Scores of boys have been prepared for Harvard and other Colleges, and pupils from nearly every State in the Union have, at different times, been enrolled as members of the school. English, French, German and the classics are embraced in the curriculum, and with a fine corps of instructors, thoroughness is guaranteed in every department.

Miss Hunter's school for both lads and misses of more youthful age, has long held high rank, and with the most excellent schools of Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Wilbour and others, furnishes every facility to those who desire to patronize private schools.

Watch No. 2260, Stem-winder, U. S. Watch Co.; Variation, eighteen seconds in eight months.—A. M. Osgood, Ilion, N. Y.

The Davis Sewing Machine,

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

We now have thousands of this Wonderful Machine in operation. Our patrons are our best advertising mediums. They are constantly sending us customers. One lady has sent us four buyers, and rightly claims to be a public benefactress.

No One Ever Buys any Other Machine after Making the Acquaintance of the DAVIS.

Ladies who have purchased other Machines have entreated us in the most earnest manner to exchange with them, and let them have the DAVIS; this we cannot do—some days we have had seven applications of this kind, but where we are selling four a day for cash, we can make no exchanges.

The DAVIS is entirely different in its construction from any other Machine, and for that reason is not in competition with any other.
